MOB GIVES UP BODY OF FRANK

Remains Left Swinging to Tree By Roadside Near Marietta Is Cut Down at 10:15 Today and Shipped to Atlanta.

MARIETTA CITIZENS BLAMED BUT NO ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

Frank Dragged From Bed, Hurried Into Waiting Automobiles and Lynched—Hurry Toward Marietta Where Lynch-Occurs at Daybreak—Swinging Body Garbed in Trousers and 'Shirt—All Georgia Excited.

By Associated Press. Marietta, Ga., August 17.—Leo M. Frank, serving a life term for the murder of Mary Phagan, the Atlanta factory girl, and who was taken from the prison farm at Milledgeville last night, was lynched two miles east of here today by an armed party which took him. He was hanged to a tree.

Frank was brought 100 miles, from the prison farm to a point almost within sight of the former home of Mary Phagan. No shots were fired.

Frank's body, barefooted and clad only in prison trousers and shirt, was found at 8:30 o'clock this morning. It is believed that he was hanged about daylight.

Several autos, well loaded, left here in the direction of Milledgeville last night.

After the return of some of the machines today, officers started out on the road which they believed the autos had traveled.

They had gone only two miles when they saw the body of Frank, not more than 150 yards from the roadside.

News that the body had been found spread rapidly, and within a short time hundreds of persons were crowding to the scene.

No immediate effort was made to cut the body down, as Sheriff Hicks was not in town and the coroner took no action.

It was believed that the stop at the bridge over Little river, near Eatonton, when the armed party talked loudly and fired shots, was a ruse to delay pursuers.

The vicinity of the bridge was thoroughly searched, and at the time the search was being made it is probable Frank already had met his death.

Frank's body was cut down, at 10:15 o'clock, but not until one of the crowd had spoken, advocating mutilation of the body.

Former Judge Newton A. Morris immediately pleaded with the throng to allow an inquest to take its proper course. A vote was suggested and taken.

It was overwhelmingly in favor of allowing the coroner to take charge of the body.

It then was cut down and the two mile trip to Marietta started. Later, however, the body was taken to Atlanta, instead of being removed to Marietta, and turned over to an undertaker in the capital.

Milledgeville, Ga., August 17.—A well organized party of armed men, who came in five automobiles, attacked the Georgia state prison here last night, took Leo M. Frank from a dormitory and escaped with him.

For hours after the attack no trace of the autos bearing the party could be found, but at daylight newspaper men picked up the trail at a point on Little river, near Eatonton, Ga.

J. K. Jackson, a white farmer living near a bridge over the Little river, said that shortly after midnight he heard several automobiles stop there.

Soon afterwards, he said, he heard loud talking and then many shots.

He heard the autos leave in the direction of Eatonton after the firing.

A hurried search of the immediate vicinity failed to reveal anything that would indicate that Frank had met summary vengeance there.

The armed party arrived in the vicinity of the prison farm and, practically unnoticed, proceeded with its business.

All means of wire communication from the institution to Milledgeville three miles away, were destroyed and all wires except one telephone line from Milledgeville also were cut.

Five men went to the house of Warden J. T. Smith, awakened him and made him prisoner.

At the same time, a small squad of men went to the home of J. M. Burke superintendent of the farm. Burke was forced to go with them to the gate nearest the dormitory, where it was believed Frank was kept.

The two guards on duty there were ordered, while guns were leveled at them, to open the gates.

The party then rushed in, quickly got Frank and hurried him to one of the waiting automobiles.

He was forced down into the car while a member of the party is said to have flourished a rope in front of him.

Without delay, those who had been guarding Warden Smith left him and joined the party at the gates.

The autos then started off swiftly in a northerly direction.

With only a limited number of guards at the prison and wire communication interrupted, immediate pursuit was impossible.

Captain Burke said after the men had rushed into the prison four of them dragged Frank out by his arms and legs, while a fifth grabbed him by the hair and bumped him down the stone steps, while Burke who was under guard, looked on.

"Frank did not utter a word," the captain said, "but apparently was suffering intensely and groaned from pain inflicted in handling him in his wounded condition."

"The affair was all over within five minutes, it seemed to me," he added.

Milledgeville, Ga., August 17.—Mrs. Leo M. Frank received the news that her husband had been lynched in a manner that led those present to believe that she had been expecting it.

She was preparing to go to an uncle's home at Athens, Ga., when she was told what had occurred.

She is reported bearing up well.

WAR PARTY MEETS KING

By Associated Press. London, August 17.—Advices from Athens say King Constantine accepted the resignation of the Gournaris cabinet, and that Venizelos, whose party elected its candidate for the presidency of the Chamber of Deputies, was invited to consult with the king today.

DOLLAR STILL ENTHRONED KING OVER ALL

By Associated Press. New York, August 17.—The foreign exchange markets were again in a condition of demoralization today. Nearly $5,000,000 in foreign gold reached Wall Street during the forenoon from Ottawa, for the account of Great Britain.

This, it was reported, practically exhausted the Bank of England's special deposits of about $120,000,000.

With the American dollar enthroned as monarch of the exchange markets, bankers here looked to England to protect her credit by the establishment of a huge war loan in this city.

1000 DIE WHEN BOAT GOES DOWN

By Associated Press. London, August 17.—The British transport Royal Edward has been torpedoed by a German submarine.

Announcement to this effect was made officially today.

Six hundred men were saved out of 1,350 troops and 220 other persons on board.

The announcement says the ship was sunk in the Aegean Sea on Saturday.

The troops consisted mainly of reinforcements for the 29th division and were bound for the Dardanelles.

This is the first instance officially reported of the sinking of a British transport.

The British government has transported hundreds of thousands of troops across many seas without the loss of life.

GEN. BLACK DIES TODAY

There have been numerous victims in the towns along the coast.

The town of Aux Cayes, of 25,000 population, suffered particularly.

Two other towns were destroyed.

5 KILLED 20 HURT ON C. & O.

By Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., August 17.—Five men were killed and 20 or more persons injured, when the smoker and baggage car of a passenger train on the Coal River branch of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad were crushed today by a heavy rock, as the train was passing through the Prindle tunnel, near McCorkle, W. Va.

The killed were J. C. Fennimore, a wealthy coal operator of Huntington; Jack Turley, of Alum Creek, W. Va.; J. G. Plymale, of Gallipolis, O.; the news vender, whose name had not been learned, and another unidentified man.

Wreck trains were hurried to the scene and the passengers imprisoned in the tunnel were rescued.

Water Five Feet Deep on Galveston Streets—Great Property Damage, But No Lives Lost—Thousands Flee Coast Towns—Fires Rage in Galveston—Mammoth Sea Wall Holds Firm.

By Associated Press. Dallas, Texas, August 17.—So far as known no lives were lost in the storm, but heavy damage has been done to crops and property.

Galveston, Beaumont and Houston were still cut off from communication.

Galveston, Texas, via wireless to Fort Sam Houston and telephone to San Antonio at 10:10 a. m., August 17.—Galveston today had passed through one of the worst storms within the past 15 years, and now is ready to repair the damage done by last night's hurricane.

Five feet of water stands in the city and is slowly draining off.

Two fires, started today, are yet to be placed under control.

The transport McClellan late last night broke from its moorings and drifted half a mile out to sea.

The commercial wireless station at Port Arthur is out of commission and the big aerial masts at Port Crockett, here, are down.

Dallas, Texas, August 17.—With the cities and towns of southeastern Texas isolated from the rest of the world, one of the worst tropical hurricanes of a decade was wearing itself out over the coastal parishes.

Railroad offices at Waco early this morning had received a report that 100 feet of the causeway at Galveston had been washed away. No further particulars were given.

The Santa Fe railroad offices at Temple, Texas, had a message early today from Galveston, saying a large vessel had been blown through the causeway connecting Galveston with the mainland.

The wind attained a velocity of almost 70 miles an hour last night at Galveston, and occasional gusts reached 90 miles an hour, according to reports.

About 5,000 persons are estimated to have left Galveston for interior points during the last 35 hours.

Hundreds of residents of smaller coast cities hurried to places away from the coast.

FORTS FALL INTO HANDS OF GERMANS

By Associated Press.

Berlin, August 17.—One of the gut lying forts of Kovno, between the Nieman river and Gesia to the south of the main fortifications, has been captured by the Germans, it was announced officially today.

More than 240 cannon and 4,500 prisoners were captured at Kovno, the statement adds.

Three forts at Novo Georgievsk also have been captured, army headquarters reports.

Novo Georgievsk is a small town, two and a half miles south of Kovno on the left bank of the Nieman.

STEELE BRINGS ACTION

Columbus, August 17.—Common Pleas Judge Rathmell here today ordered the release, under habeas corpus proceedings, of two men recently arrested in Cleveland, Richard E. Golden and William C. Woodward, who have been held in connection with the alleged "film flaming" of Robert F. Steele, of Washington C. H., out of $710.

The other men in the case are being held.

Steele today brought legal action against them to recover his alleged losses, and their property at the police station was attached.

ASKS KAISER TO EXPLAIN

Washington, August 17.—The American reply to Germany's last note on the sinking of the American sailing ship William P. Frye, made public here today by the State Department, accepts the proposal that damages be fixed by a mixed commission and that the disputed treaty provisions be submitted to arbitration at the Hague, but calls on Germany for a statement, meanwhile, as to whether she intends to conduct her future naval operations in accordance with her interpretation of the Prussian-American treaty, or those of the United States.

Leo Frank Is Removed From Jail and Lynched

Armed Posse Overpowers Warden of Milledgeville Prison, Obtains Frank and Hurries Him to Home of the Victim, Where He Is Lynched.

By Associated Press.

Atlanta, Ga., August 17--(9:30 a. m.)--Leo Frank, who was removed from the prison at Milledgeville by 25 armed men about midnight, was lynched at Marietta at an early hour this morning, in the presence of a large mob.

The twenty-five armed men overpowered the warden of the Georgia state prison and quickly obtained Leo Frank, dragged him to waiting automobiles and the party darted off at terrific speed.

Frank was taken direct to Marietta, the home of Mary Phagan, whom he was convicted of murdering, and there lynched.

Prior to entering the prison the men had cut the wires to the prison so that no help could be summoned.

Great excitement prevails throughout Georgia.

Frank was accused and convicted of murdering Mary Phagan, factory employee. The fight over his case attracted the attention of the entire United States. He was sentenced to be hanged but the governor changed the sentence to live imprisonment and he was taken to the Milledgeville state prison, where a fellow convict attacked and nearly killed him.

GREEK ACTION PRESAGES WAR AIDING ALLIES

Athens, August 17.--The Balkan situation reached a climax yesterday which is expected to draw the Balkan states into the war within a few days.

At the meeting of the Greek Chamber of Deputies former Premier Venizelos, an adherent of the allies' cause, won a complete victory by the election of M. Zavitzanos, an adherent of Venizelos, as President. This action was followed by the resignation of the Gournaris Government which was discredited at the recent election.

M. Zavitzanos received 182 votes, against 93 for the Government's candidate.

Victory for Venizelos's party is expected to bring Greece into the leadership in composing the differences among other Balkan States and align them as a unit.

Leo Frank Is Removed From Jail and Lynched

Armed Posse Overpowers Warden of Milledgeville Prison, Obtains Frank and Hurries Him to Home of the Victim, Where He Is Lynched.

By Associated Press.

Atlanta, Ga., August 17—(9:30 a. m.)—Leo Frank, who was removed from the prison at Milledgeville by 25 armed men about midnight, was lynched at Marietta at an early hour this morning, in the presence of a large mob.

The twenty-five armed men overpowered the warden of the Georgia state prison and quickly obtained Leo Frank, dragged him to waiting automobiles and the party darted off at terrific speed.

Frank was taken direct to Marietta, the home of Mary Phagan, whom he was convicted of murdering, and there lynched.

Prior to entering the prison the men had cut the wires to the prison so that no help could be summoned.

Great excitement prevails throughout Georgia.

Frank was accused and convicted of murdering Mary Phagan, factory employee. The fight over his case attracted the attention of the entire United States. He was sentenced to be hanged but the governor changed the sentence to live imprisonment and he was taken to the Milledgeville state prison, where a fellow convict attacked and nearly killed him.

GREEK ACTION PRESAGES WAR AIDING ALLIES

Athens, August 17.—The Balkan situation reached a climax yesterday which is expected to draw the Balkan states into the war within a few days.

At the meeting of the Greek Chamber of Deputies former Premier Venizelos, an adherent of the allies' cause, won a complete victory by the election of M. Zavitzanos, an adherent of Venizelos, as President. This action was followed by the resignation of the Gournaris Government which was discredited at the recent election.

M. Zavitzanos received 182 votes, against 93 for the Government's candidate.

FAYETTE SENDING HORSES TO EUROPE

A great many Fayette county horses are being bought up for export to Europe, and there is a steady demand. Among the buyers most active just now is J. W. Patterson, of Atlanta, Ga., who is representing directly the governments of England and France. His agent in this county is J. E. Green, of this city. In July these gentlemen purchased 305 head of Fayette county horses, all destined for England. These horses were all shipped to Cincinnati and there inspected before continuing the journey eastward.

Messrs Patterson and Green are now in the market for horses for French use.

WOMAN SEEKS TWO "CON" MEN'S RELEASE

An effort to secure the release from the city prison of Richard E. Golden and William C. Woodward, arrested last week in Cleveland and brought here on the charge of embezzling $710 from Robert Steele of Washington C. H., by means of a wire-tapping game, was made Monday when Mrs. May Golden, wife of Golden, filed two actions in habeas corpus in Common Pleas court.

Mrs. Golden asks the release of her husband and Woodward, alleging that they are being held in custody without the proper legal grounds for doing so. — Columbus Citizen.

FAIR NOTES

Fair Secretary "Billy" Rogers stated Monday that the board was more than pleased with the racing prospect for the fair this week. The entry list will be one of the largest and most attractive ever offered at a Fayette county fair.

Prof. F. B. Robison, celebrated balloonist, has been engaged to give balloon ascensions each afternoon of the fair.

There will be no delays attending the exhibitions, as Prof. Robison has a perfect equipment. The equipment includes an engine for the purpose of instantly filling the balloon with gas, eliminating the tedious waiting that has accompanied such exhibitions in the past.

The parcel post exhibit under the direction of Postmaster J. H. Culhan will be a big feature of the exhibits. The capacity of the parcel post will be clearly explained.

Another exhibit of interest will be that of the Washington Home Telephone Company, demonstrating the new automatic service now being installed in the city and county.

Singers have been secured to give selections through megaphones during the races. They will accompany the band, which will be located in the grand stand.

Superintendent Tharp states that the Midway will be "bigger, better and grander than ever."

The Horse Show, a new feature, will be the biggest surprise package of all, according to talk from the "inside."

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

First Aid Tent.

The Boy Scouts were busy Monday erecting a first aid tent at the fair grounds. The purpose of the tent is to give refreshment and relief to the weary and afflicted during the fair.

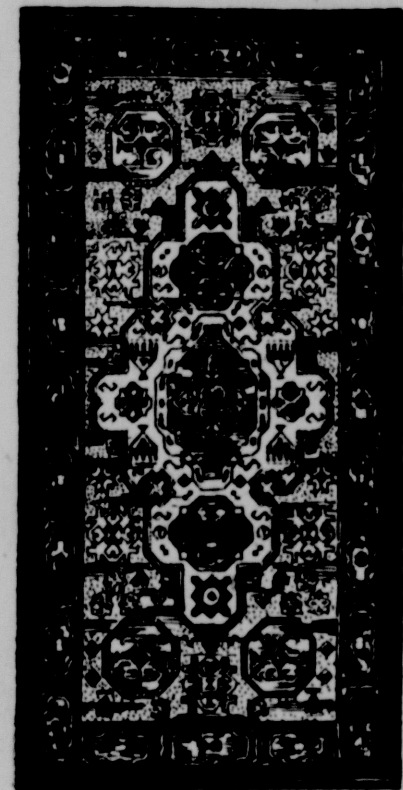

Three boys will remain in the tent each night. An exhibition of scoutcraft will probably be given later in the week.

A Crisis Seems Near

The continued retreat of the Russian armies before the German advance, the very manifest purpose of the Russians to save only the armies under Grand Duke Nicholas, the abandonment of one city after another in Poland almost as soon as the German attack begins, and the continued inactivity of the allies in the west, so far as any offensive movement is concerned, has set observers to thinking.

It is scarcely reasonable to suppose, it is urged, that Russia would retreat with so little resistance, comparatively, and in such order unless it was part of a well understood and planned campaign.

It is known too, that England has now a reserve army of nearly three million soldiers ready for action along the west battle front. It is known also that France has completed the work of mobilizing her reserves and that vast army is now reported to be ready, in every way, for active service on the battle line.

The feeling of pity for Russia on account of the repeated reverses her armies have suffered during the last six months, is slowly giving way to a belief that the whole movement is but part of a campaign which is now nearing completion. That belief is the result of oft expressed opinions of able critics to that effect.

The history of the Napoleonic campaigns is pointed to as furnishing an exact parallel to the last six months fighting in Europe.

Possibly the Kaiser has fallen into the same error that proved to be the undoing of Napoleon and that the repeated victories over the armies of the Czar has caused him to lose sight of the dangers of marching his forces too far into Russia in the hope of capturing the elusive armies of the Slavs.

It may be that attaching too much importance to the empty honor of capturing city after city, heretofore held by the Czar, the Teutonic allies may pursue the phantom so far that the allies in the west will be able to deal them a crushing blow before the widely separated armies can be again concentrated in the west.

It does not seem probable that so close a student of military affairs, such a military genius as Emperor William would be unmindful of such a danger.

If Germany has not been mindful of and guarded against such a danger it will be the first one in the present war.

At any rate every condition at the present time indicates that a crisis is imminent. Either the wonderful German efficiency is going to prove equal to the occasion when the clash in the west comes, or else the perfect fighting machine is to be crushed as a result of military tactics more than a century old.

Never before has the present struggle in Europe indicated so clearly the near approach of a decisive clash at it does now, and never has the situation of the opposing forces offered so vast a number of possibilities about which theorists may speculate and partisans may express their opinions.

With the Balkan states wavering as to their course and the victory of the war party in Greece, affairs in the south of Europe take on an added interest.

While progress has been made by the allies in the Dardanelles campaign, yet the success of their plans is not yet assured with Bulgaria still maintaining a position of neutrality.

In that theater of war, too, there is much to fascinate the theorists and to attract those who can maintain an attitude of impartiality, while history is writing great events upon its records.

United States Strong Enough to Avert Financial Panic at War's End

By EMORY R. JOHNSON, Ph. D., Sc. D., Professor of Transportation and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania

WILL it be possible for American producers to prevent the occurrence of a business depression or panic such as usually comes about the third year after the close of a great war?

Unless this can be accomplished American as well as European industries will WITHIN A FEW YEARS AFTER THE CLOSE OF THE WAR HAVE TO PASS THROUGH A PERIOD OF DRASTIC LIQUIDATION AND REORGANIZATION.

A generalization based upon the past would lead to the prediction of a panic, but recent improvements in financial and industrial organization afford reasons for believing that it will be possible, if not to prevent an after war panic, to keep the business depression within tolerable limits.

The day of business depressions is not past, but there are grounds for believing that the present organization of business, together with the banking laws and practice and the system of currency now prevailing in the United States, may prevent a future business depression in the United States from reaching the stage of panic.

WITHOUT AN EFFICIENT ORGANIZATION OF INDUSTRY AND WITHOUT THE FEDERAL RESERVE ACT THE BOOM FOLLOWING THE CLOSE OF THE EUROPEAN WAR WOULD ALMOST CERTAINLY BE FOLLOWED BY A SEVERE INDUSTRIAL PANIC IN THIS COUNTRY.

Poetry For Today

THE NATION SPEAKS.

Children of Liberty, awake!
In ordered ranks your places take!
Where Freedom's sons have blazed the trail,
Shall you, their leal descendants, fail
To hold in trust the ideal pure
That is their heritage secure?

You, who from forms of bandage drear,
Have sought and found a refuge here—
Who reap the fruit of bitter tears
And patriot blood of former years,
Taking the most that I can give,
Learning how God meant men to live—

You promised fealty. Your vow
Was pledged to me. I need you now!
I need you now, my sons! Why wait
Till an invader storms the gate?
Your desperate resistance then
Might not avail. A host of men
Untrained, undisciplined, are less,
In time of peril and distress,
Than half that multitude would be,
Versed in the art of soldiery.

Oh, these, my children! So secure,
So confident, so over-sure,
While Europe dies, with warning writ
In blood across the face of it!
Valor, I doubt not, warms your heart—
Discretion is the better part!
Lest to the scourge your neck must bow.
Be ye prepared! I need you now!

Pope Benedict's appeal for peace was well timed. The fall of Warsaw seemed a foregone conclusion, and that event was a turning point in military operations, one to cause belligerents to stop and think. The appeal dealt mainly with generalities, as was proper when addressing the Christian conscience of Europe. Several detached sentences summarize, each a whole sermon which the author might have preached, but wisely left to statesmen to preach to themselves. He said "thousands of young lives are being snuffed out daily," "the price of the struggle is too high" and "the bloody carnage which for a year has dishonored Europe." All of this he might have expanded to show how not alone the flower of youth is being destroyed, but that womanhood, old and young, is turned aside from normal paths and the progress of our best civilization checked for an indefinite period. Already it has been broached in the allied camp that polygamy can be revived to repair the wastage of productivity caused by bullets and shells. This is but one of many problems to be faced. "A fight to the death" is what the wrongheaded and mad brained belligerents are pledged to persist in. Is not this an hour when the "higher law" of right should prevail over man made precedents and technicalities and national pride?

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Loss of Weight.

One of the early symptoms of tuberculosis is a loss of weight. Any decided decreases should be watched with suspicion. It often means that the general bodily functions are not all that they should be. It is certain, under any circumstances, to indicate that one's physical resistance is being lowered, and this in itself opens the way to unusual chances of disease.

If this loss in weight is accompanied by loss of appetite, night sweats or a persistent cough or cold a physician should be consulted and nourishing food, plenty of rest and long hours of sleep in the fresh air should be resorted to in an effort to build up the body.

People will neglect themselves for months when decreasing weight should warn them as surely as the falling barometer denotes a coming storm that their physical well being is in jeopardy.

SPECIAL SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL HELD LAST NIGHT

Very little business was transacted at the call meeting of council Monday night.

The semi-annual appropriation ordinance was read and passed. Inquiry was made as to the total amount carried in the appropriation ordinance, but council did not figure out the totals.

An amendment to the assessing ordinance on Washington avenue was passed to conform with other assessing ordinances where the bond buyers asked for changes.

Howell asked if the contract for the East street improvement called for all asphaltic construction. He pointed out that it was the intention of council that East street from Main to Fayette should be paved with brick, as it had been requested by property owners.

The resolution calling for the improvement was read and proved to be a blanket resolution insofar as materials were concerned. Mayor Coffey stated that the contract called for all asphaltic construction.

It was recalled that council had been urged to pave the one square with brick, and that it was council's intention to do so, but there had been a slip somewhere.

The couple were married in this city July 27, 1914 and have one child. Plaintiff is represented by Rankin & Rankin.

Plaintiff charges that her husband abandoned her Monday of this week.

S. S. CAMPAIGN EXTENDED UNTIL FIRST OF OCTOBER

Letters have been received by all pastors and Sunday school superintendents in Fayette county, informing them that in response to requests which became so numerous that they could no longer be passed in silence, the executive committee of the Ohio Sunday School Association has decided to extend the campaign for $100,000 sustaining fund to October 1st. The prime reason for this is that the month of August is used so generally as vacation time that a majority of leaders throughout the state were not in their home cities.

The Sunday schools in many instances expressed a desire to make their collections when their attendance was at a maximum and not at low ebb. A second reason was the fact that it has been impossible to effect the close organization necessary for the best results in many sections of the state.

The executive committee shows its confidence in the plan by advising the business committee to secure options on a desirable site and to ask the architects of Ohio to submit plans and specifications for a proper building.

NEWS OF THE DIAMOND

Umpire Resigns.

"I wouldn't umpire another game between Wilmington and Washington for a hundred dollars," was the way Umpire Swain tendered his resignation to the two clubs.

Swain is a Cincinnati man, secured through Spinnay of that city to referee the Clinton-Athletic series. Until Sunday's game he was regarded with satisfaction by both sides.

Both Wilmington and Washington clubs seem pleased with this, the last of Swain's decisions.

Manager Noon has written Spinnay in an effort to get another man. Charlie Schuyler of Columbus is also being considered.

Sterling Game Cancelled.

The game to have been played here Wednesday afternoon between the Athletics and Mt. Sterling has been cancelled, owing to the inability of the Athletics to get together a team.

A Curious Toy.

In an East Indian museum there is to be seen a singular instrument, invented for the delectation of Tippoo Sahib in his palace at Mysore. It is in the form of an automaton tiger, life size, represented in the act of devouring a British soldier, who lies prostrate under its paws. Inside this automaton is a rude organ, turned by a handle, and emitting sounds in imitation of the growls of a tiger and the moans of the dying victim. At the taking of Seringapatam this curious object was found in Tippoo's palace along with other evidences of the horribly cruel nature of the conquered prince.

Close at Hand.

A woman from the south visiting New York for the first time was much agitated when, after being conveyed through the Hudson tube, she found herself in another subway. Rushing up to a knowing looking individual, she asked in an agitated tone:

"Sir, do please tell me where is New York?"

"Lady," said he, with the utmost gravity, "it's right at the top of those stairs."—Harper's Magazine.

Where He Stood.

"Are you in favor of the income tax?" asked the innocent bystander.

"In principle," replied the prominent citizen, "but with some modification. For example, I think the tax should be collected only on incomes that are larger than my own."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Going the Rounds.

Beatrice—I think Amy Smith is the meanest creature I ever met! I showed her my engagement ring, and she said it was always too tight for her. Rosalie—Yes, she said exactly the same to me last year when I had it!—London Telegraph.

The civil war taught the economists of the southern belt of states that a mistake had been made in living closely up to the theory that "cotton is king." What the south needed most to keep the war going was grain to supply the troops and the civilian population. The European war threatened to make the great southern staple a drug on the market, and this year, according to the Manufacturers' Record, the grain production of the south will show an increase of about 23 per cent as against an increase for the country at large of 5½ per cent. The total increase in the south will be in the neighborhood of 300,000,000 bushels, the cotton states contributing fully two-thirds of the increase. Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, which were cotton "poor" in 1864 and finally burned immense stores of it to prevent it from enriching the enemy, will be represented in the grain increase for 1915 by over 120,000,000 bushels.

The British premier says "England can laugh at the invasion peril." That is all right for the center of the "tight little island," but accounts from the wide seacoasts tell a different story.

It is estimated that the cotton exports from this country for the year will fall but little below that of 1913, notwithstanding the disturbance of trade by the war.

Co-operation by neutral South American countries with this country in the pacification of Mexico seems to be the most natural plan which has been proposed. Aside from the antipathy which the Mexican factions have for each other and which is a drawback to getting together themselves, there is the distrust, when it is not hatred, of the people and power north of the Rio Grande. If the leaders of other South American states—as, for instance, the A. B. C. powers—guarantee to those of their own blood our sincerity and good faith and stand ready to co-operate for the good of Mexico, the long standing suspicion of us may be allayed to the extent that our true position and friendship will be understood.

Naturally the idea suggests itself that the warring of factions in Mexico can be stopped or the end hastened by stopping the exportation of munitions and arms, as was done once before. But the allies in Europe practically confess that they cannot continue the war there without our arms and munitions. Unless it be assumed that this country wishes the European war to continue to the bitter end the difference seems to be about that between tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee.

It really seems that moving pictures which do move, joy rides, yellow journalism and the "best seller" problem novels are indispensable to make life worth living for a great many people, a great many. Tell this to grandma, but be sure to have the smelling bottle handy, extra strong at that.

They have improved war methods almost beyond recognition, but the ancient type of general who burns his bridges behind him to "win or die" could probably get a job in the car's outfit.

The national health board urges two hours' daily exercise out of doors for city men. Then how would the city car lines earn their big dividends?

SPECIAL SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL HELD LAST NIGHT

Very little business was transacted at the call meeting of council Monday night.

The semi-annual appropriation ordinance was read and passed. Inquiry was made as to the total amount carried in the appropriation ordinance, but council did not figure out the totals.

An amendment to the assessing ordinance on Washington avenue was passed to conform with other assessing ordinances where the bond buyers asked for changes.

Howell asked if the contract for the East street improvement called for all asphaltic construction. He pointed out that it was the intention of council that East street from Main to Fayette should be paved with brick, as it had been requested by property owners.

The resolution calling for the improvement was read and proved to be a blanket resolution insofar as materials were concerned. Mayor Coffey stated that the contract called for all asphaltic construction.

It was recalled that council had been urged to pave the one square with brick, and that it was council's intention to do so, but there had been a slip somewhere.

HUSBAND LEAVES WIFE BRINGS SUIT

Kate Horney against Wilbur Horney is the style of the latest action filed in common pleas court, the plaintiff asking alimony, custody of minor child, restraining order to prevent the defendant from selling certain household goods or having custody of child, as well as "other proper relief" which is supposed to mean a divorce from the defendant.

The couple were married in this city July 27, 1914 and have one child. Plaintiff is represented by Rankin & Rankin.

Plaintiff charges that her husband abandoned her Monday of this week.

S. S. CAMPAIGN EXTENDED UNTIL FIRST OF OCTOBER

Letters have been received by all pastors and Sunday school superintendents in Fayette county, informing them that in response to requests which became so numerous that they could no longer be passed in silence, the executive committee of the Ohio Sunday School Association has decided to extend the campaign for $100,000 sustaining fund to October 1st. The prime reason for this is that the month of August is used so generally as vacation time that a majority of leaders throughout the state were not in their home cities.

The Sunday schools in many instances expressed a desire to make their collections when their attendance was at a maximum and not at low ebb. A second reason was the fact that it has been impossible to effect the close organization necessary for the best results in many sections of the state.

The executive committee shows its confidence in the plan by advising the business committee to secure options on a desirable site and to ask the architects of Ohio to submit plans and specifications for a proper building.

NEWS OF THE DIAMOND

Umpire Resigns.

"I wouldn't umpire another game between Wilmington and Washington for a hundred dollars," was the way Umpire Swain tendered his resignation to the two clubs.

Swain is a Cincinnati man, secured through Spinnery of that city to referee the Clinton-Athletic series. Until Sunday's game he was regarded with satisfaction by both sides.

Both Wilmington and Washington clubs seem pleased with this, the last of Swain's decisions.

Manager Noon has written Spinnery in an effort to get another man. Charlie Schuyler of Columbus is also being considered.

Sterling Game Cancelled.

The game to have been played here Wednesday afternoon between the Athletics and Mt. Sterling has been cancelled, owing to the inability of the Athletics to get together a team.

Underwood and Linson both having "signed up" with the canning factory this week there's only Noon and Rannels of the regulars who can arrange to play week day ball.

A Curious Toy.

In an East Indian museum there is to be seen a singular instrument, invented for the delectation of Tippoo Sahib in his palace at Mysore. It is in the form of an automaton tiger, life size, represented in the act of devouring a British soldier, who lies prostrate under its paws. Inside this automaton is a rude organ, turned by a handle, and emitting sounds in imitation of the growls of a tiger and the moans of the dying victim. At the taking of Seringapatam this curious object was found in Tippoo's palace along with other evidences of the horribly cruel nature of the conquered prince.

Close at Hand.

A woman from the south visiting New York for the first time was much agitated when, after being conveyed through the Hudson tube, she found herself in another subway. Rushing up to a knowing looking individual, she asked in an agitated tone: "Sir, do please tell me where is New York?"

"Lady," said he, with the utmost gravity, "it's right at the top of those stairs."—Harper's Magazine.

Where He Stood.

"Are you in favor of the income tax?" asked the innocent bystander. "In principle," replied the prominent citizen, "but with some modification. For example, I think the tax should be collected only on incomes that are larger than my own."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Going the Rounds.

Beatrice—I think Amy Smith is the meanest creature I ever met! I showed her my engagement ring, and she said it was always too tight for her. Rosalie—Yes, she said exactly the same to me last year when I had it!—London Telegraph.

The civil war taught the economists of the southern belt of states that a mistake had been made in living closely up to the theory that "cotton is king." What the south needed most to keep the war going was grain to supply the troops and the civilian population. The European war threatened to make the great southern staple a drug on the market, and this year, according to the Manufacturers' Record, the grain production of the south will show an increase of about 23 per cent as against an increase for the country at large of 5½ per cent. The total increase in the south will be in the neighborhood of 300,000,000 bushels, the cotton states contributing fully two-thirds of the increase. Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, which were cotton "poor" in 1864 and finally burned immense stores of it to prevent it from enriching the enemy, will be represented in the grain increase for 1915 by over 120,000,000 bushels.

Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing, disbelieves in capital punishment and says so vigorously. During the week of justice and the courts at the Chautauqua Institution, Chautauqua, N. Y., Warden Osborne spoke to a large afternoon audience in the amphitheater. After the speech questions were asked and answered, among others being that of capital punishment. Mr. Osborne said: "I believe in the state doing away with capital punishment. Every one who is directly connected with it hates and disbelieves in the hideous thing. If the governor of this state were by law required to witness every death in the death chamber we should not have any more executions. I can find nothing in the Commandments that will show any reason why the responsibility of taking a life is changed when 500,000 people take the life instead of five. It is the one place in life where we have brought ourselves to believe that a debt can be balanced by a debt. The old Mosaic law of 'an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth,' was designed for a different state of society and was a prohibition from going any further. There is nothing in the teachings of Jesus Christ that can give us any ground for considering ourselves not accountable when we take the lives of human beings in this way."

Entire Change of Program Each Night.
A large crowd was pleased last night.

NOTICE—The Fox Reilly Globe Trotters opened yesterday at the Empire Theatre and too much praise cannot be given such high class artists. Their opening bill, "Daddy," proved to be a winner, as all jokes are good, the comedy funny and the song numbers new and well rendered. The chorus is high class and one can see at a glance that it is under a strict manager, as not one mistake occurred during last night's performances, which speaks well for the opening. Fox Reilly and Ernest Linwood, the 200 pound black face comedian, take care of the comedy parts and they surely are great. The character part is handled by Fred Cramer. There were eight song numbers are sung, interspersed with good clean comedy. They appear tonight in an all new bill called "The Two Counts."

Mrs. O. D. Marchant and sister Mrs. C. E. Snider of Cleveland left Tuesday afternoon for a two weeks' tour of the west, visiting the Panama-Pacific exposition. They go via Denver and Salt Lake City, returning over the southern route.

Miss Pearl Hartley has returned from several days' visit with Mrs. Max Howard at Wilmington.

Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing, disbelieves in capital punishment and says so vigorously. During the week of justice and the courts at the Chautauqua Institution, Chautauqua, N. Y., Warden Osborne spoke to a large afternoon audience in the amphitheater. After the speech questions were asked and answered, among others being that of capital punishment. Mr. Osborne said: "I believe in the state doing away with capital punishment. Every one who is directly connected with it hates and disbelieves in the hideous thing. If the governor of this state were by law required to witness every death in the death chamber we should not have any more executions. I can find nothing in the Commandments that will show any reason why the responsibility of taking a life is changed when 500,000 people take the life instead of five. It is the one place in life where we have brought ourselves to believe that a debt can be balanced by a debt. The old Moslem law of 'an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth,' was designed for a different state of society and was a prohibition from going any further. There is nothing in the teachings of Jesus Christ that can give us any ground for considering ourselves not accountable when we take the lives of human beings in this way."

Can thus be proved with precision:
The girl you're mad at is a sight,
The one you're taken with—a vision.
—Judge.

She Agreed.
Rector—The divorce laws are scandalous. They should be changed.
Grass Widow—I quite agree with you, rector. It's a shame to be compelled to live so many months in those impossible places in order to acquire a legal residence.—Puck.

United States marines pacify the Haitian situation by disarming the scrappers. And this country is believed to be in a position to do some disarming in the European muck any time it takes a notion.

The destiny of Haiti may be that of Cuba. If the United States starts in on pacification it will finish the job, possibly more energetically than in the case of Cuba. We have learned much about our southern neighbors during the past fifteen years. It has also worked the other way. What we do with Haiti in 1915 may be a warning to other turbulent South American peoples. A lesson which should be driven home is that foreign recognition saddles upon the beneficiary the obligation to prove worth it and worthy of it.

A bunch of New England college men are earning $3 a day in the Kansas harvest fields. They are athletes and expect that the hard labor will keep them "fit" for the gridiron when the season opens. Surely farm work affords better practice for muscles than waiting on table.

Huerta is learning English. But it's no matter to us what language he speaks, so that he thinks the vital questions over in United States terms.

The stinger belongs in the head of this one, not in the tail: "In hands of men entirely great the pen is mightier than the sword."

A rose of any old size would smell as sweetly, even if not as mightily, as that newly bred nineteen inch freak in Canada.

With us it is a question what to do with our ex-presidents; for Mexico, what will the ex-presidents do with her.

Adventurers and dictators have almost always found Mexico City too slimy to hold for long.

Fox Reilly "Globe Trotters"

PRESENT TONIGHT

The Two Counts.

Entire Change of Program Each Night.
A large crowd was pleased last night.

NOTICE—The Fox Reilly Globe Trotters opened yesterday at the Empire Theatre and too much praise cannot be given such high class artists. Their opening bill, "Daddy," proved to be a winner, as all jokes are good, the comedy funny and the song numbers new and well rendered. The chorus is high class and one can see at a glance that it is under a strict manager, as not one mistake occurred during last night's performances, which speaks well for the opening. Fox Reilly and Ernest Linwood, the 200 pound black face comedian, take care of the comedy parts and they surely are great. The character part is handled by Fred Cramer. There were eight song numbers are sung, interspersed with good clean comedy. They appear tonight in an all new bill called "The Two Counts."

Russia's New Port.

An important railroad is being built northward from Petrograd to a point on the Arctic ocean near the Norwegian frontier, about 500 miles west of Archangel, on a portion of the arctic coast line reached by the end of the gulf stream, which makes the climate at that point much milder than at Archangel. A port will be created there that should never become icebound, as Archangel is in winter.

OHIO SAHARA HAS SALOONS

Columbus, August 17.—For the first time in its history Hancock county today was able to boast a Liquor License Board. The reason was that one or two people in that county have decided they want to go into the saloon business.
For years Hancock county has been a Sahara of dryness. The home rule amendment to the constitution last fall opened the floodgates, but still there was not even an oasis.

GREAT INFUX OF GOLD COIN

Chicago, August 17.—An influx of gold into the United States as a result of the balance of trade swinging in favor of this country was predicted today by John Burke, treasurer of the United States, who is here as a guest of the Chicago societies of the Irish National Brotherhood.

Burke declared that $100,000,000 in gold was ready to be sent to this country from Europe for war munitions and provisions.

Practically all the settlement at

VESSELS CAPSIZE

Brownsville, Texas, August 17.—
The United States wireless station here received a report from the transport Buford at Galveston last night that the water had risen 10 feet and that 10 vessels had turned over in the harbor there.

The government wireless station was unable to raise Galveston or Texas City, but received the following report by wireless from Ft. Sam
Houston at San Antonio:

"Ft. Sam Houston reports it had been calling Galveston since eight o'clock. Texas City reported at two
p. m. that he expected his mast to blow down at any time."

Ft. Sam Houston also reported that water was going over the causeway at 6 p. m.

A crew of twenty men is reported to have perished late yesterday, when a ship was blown upon a reef.

Galveston's isolation after an afternoon of anxiety on the part of the rest of the state served only to intensify the suspense. However, the fact that the wind at 5 o'clock was blowing from the north, and the water, which had backed into the streets was from the bay side of the island, led those who are familiar with the geographical position of the city and the history of its storms, to entertain new hopes that the gale would not result in a disaster.

The sea wall is on the south side of the city and faces the open gulf.
The waters of the bay directly opposite, across the mile-wide island, are mere shallows except for the narrow ship channel.

The second great storm to which the city has been subjected was on July 19, 1909, after the sea wall had been built, giving Galveston virtually the same protection it has today.
At the zenith of the storm the wind reached a velocity of more than 80 miles and was considered almost as strong as the 1900 storm. The wind and waves at that time beat full up on the sea wall, which withstood the assault for several hours and proved itself the savior of the city. An iron railing and a few bits of concrete were torn away, but otherwise the great barrier was intact.

At 11:30 o'clock it was reported that many buildings in Galveston and other cities in the path of the storm had been tossed from their foundation by wind and crushed as if mere boxes.

Great damage, due to wrecked business and private homes, was reported from Corpus Christi.

Miller was crushed about the hips of the wreck are doing very well.

Albert Aleshire, tenant on the Cory farm near Frankfort, was attacked by an unknown thug, between eight and nine o'clock Sunday morning, knocked unconscious by a blow upon the head and his pocket book and other valuables stolen.

The attack occurred in Aleshire's barn, and the man was unconscious for sometime before discovered by his wife.

Bowser Catches On

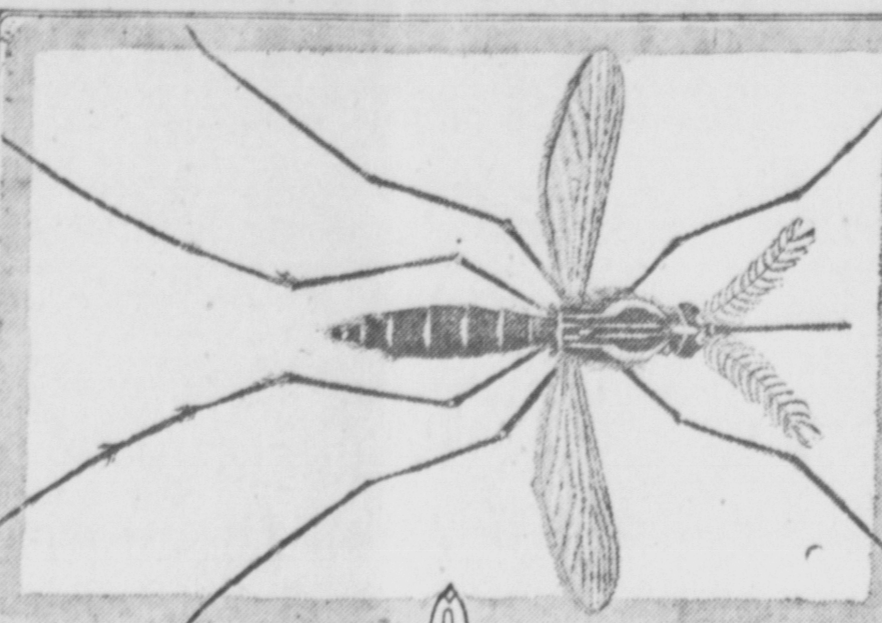

And It's Mrs. Bowser Who Gets the Worst of It.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Bowser had been good for a week—that is, good for him. He hadn't been up in a balloon or down in a submarine. He hadn't planned a trip to either pole. He hadn't had a row with the street car conductor or told the butcher what he thought of him for sending so much bone with the meat. He hadn't hustled a tramp out of the yard or had he threatened the arrest of a street peddler. But in place of this he had been very arrogant about the house. He had talked about "my" house, "my" grocery, "my" friends and a whole lot of other "mys," as if he was the whole show and Mrs. Bowser was nothing at all. She was both amused and provoked, and after several days she wrote a letter to her mother. In the letter she said: "Mr. Bowser has a case of the 'big head.' I think you had better come out here and apply the remedy. I want you to come unexpectedly and catch him in the act." And the mother wrote back: "I will come next Friday afternoon, and I will attend to Samuel's case with promptness and dispatch, as I well know how to do. I can find my way over from the depot, and I will arrive about an hour before he comes up to dinner. Let him act up and canter around, for his time is short." On the day Mrs. Bowser wrote her letter she handed it to Mr. Bowser to drop into the letter box on the corner. He carried it along in his hand, and as he was about to mail it he noticed that the envelope was not sealed. "Hub!" he grunted. "Just like a woman. This letter is to her mother, and I suppose it contains a hundred dollar bill? Guess I will look in and see."

And the mother wrote back: "I will come next Friday afternoon, and I will attend to Samuel's case with promptness and dispatch, as I well know how to do. I can find my way over from the depot, and I will arrive about an hour before he comes up to dinner. Let him act up and canter around, for his time is short." On the day Mrs. Bowser wrote her letter she handed it to Mr. Bowser to drop into the letter box on the corner. He carried it along in his hand, and as he was about to mail it he noticed that the envelope was not sealed. "Hub!" he grunted. "Just like a woman. This letter is to her mother, and I suppose it contains a hundred dollar bill? Guess I will look in and see."

And he backed up against a fence and read every word of it. He was thereby put in possession of Mrs. Bowser's nice little plot to take him down a peg or two. "The old woman will answer this in a day or two," he mused, "and I will get hold of the answer in some way. Then we will see who is the biggest man. Acting up, am I? Need taking down a peg or two. H'm! Nice little bear trap they are going to set for me." Like 99 women out of 100, when Mrs. Bowser received her letter she reads it and then places it on the mantelpiece or plane until she gets time to read it two or three times more. Mr. Bowser had only to read it once to lay his little plan. When the train from Okomas arrived in the city at 5 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Bowser's mother-in-law was one of the passengers. As usual, she had a folded umbrella in one hand and her quaint old carpet bag in the other. She was disputing with the hackman as to the price to be paid when her smiling son-in-law approached with extended hand and a bland smile. He not only wrung her hand like one glad to see another, but he kissed her—yes, sir, Mr. Bowser positively kissed his mother-in-law and that before fifty people! "Why—why—why?" she stammered, in her great confusion. "Why, mother, dear, I'm awfully glad to see you," he said. "But I—I didn't expect you to meet me. Did Sarah tell you to come?" "Oh, I just happened to be here on business. You are going to the house, of course?" "Why—er—yes." "Then come along, and never mind the hack. We'll whirl over in an auto. Nothing is too rich for my dear mother." The old lady was so paralyzed that she dropped both satchel and umbrella, and when he had picked them up she slowly followed him out of the depot and wondered if she had arrived at Oshkosh or Yaphank, and whether his name was Bowser or Jones. On the way over to the house he kept calling her "dear mother" and saying that he had been longing to see her for the last month, and she was so astonished that for once in her life she kept her mouth shut for fully five minutes. As Mrs. Bowser had planned it, she was to lay down on the lounge a few minutes before Mr. Bowser would reach home for dinner. There would be camphor sprinkled around, and she would have a nice clean towel around her head. The mother would be seated upstairs, ready to play her part at a minute's notice. Mr. Bowser would burst into the hall in his usual impetuous way, and, smelling the camphor, he would strike back into the sitting room and demand of the half dead woman lying with closed eyes: "Woman, what in the old Harry does this mean! Is it another of your infernal sick headaches? Can't I leave this house for a day and return without finding you kerflopped with some ailment or other?" "Oh, Samuel!" she murmured. "Don't 'oh, Samuel me!' he shouted, "but tell me what's the matter. Have you got a chicken bone in your throat or has a rattlesnake bitten you?" And at this critical moment the mother-in-law would appear in the door, and the way she would go for Samuel Bowser and the way he would be crushed would long be remembered. But that little plot never developed. Mrs. Bowser was on the front steps, looking up the street for the arrival of the expected mother, who probably would come on the street car, when an auto whirled around the corner and drove up to the gate and stopped with a grand flourish. In that auto were seated Mr. Bowser and her mother. They were not ghosts, but living human beings. Mr. Bowser raised his hat and gave a half cheer, and the old lady somehow managed to call out, "Howdy, Sarah?" With tenderest hand and smiling like a June morning Mr. Bowser assisted his visitor to alight and conducted her up the steps and said to the puzzled and astonished wife: "Isn't it splendid of her to come to visit us? She probably will want to return home in about a month, but we will keep her three months at least—six months—a whole year. Never, never shall we let the mother out of our sight again." When the mother and daughter were alone upstairs the mother asked: "Sarah, what in tarnation does this mean?"

THE FAMILY VACUUM.

She Knew Its Exact Location, and He Confirmed Her Report.

The good man had just been informed by the only person who could possibly possess the information that he hadn't an ounce of sense, that he had never had an ounce of sense and that there was not the remotest chance that he ever would have an ounce of sense. Having been assured on these points, the good man turned to his paper, only to be interrupted by his young son and heir: "Father," asked the boy, "what is a vacuum, and where can I find one?" "My boy," replied the good man, "if we are to assume that your mother is qualified to speak on the subject I possess the only real vacuum in the neighborhood, and, for your further information, it is situated just between my collar and the glossy open space where I used to grow hair." "You mean your dome?" "Yes, my son, that is the family vacuum."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Sprains.

A sprain is due to the stretching and tearing of the ligaments around a joint. It usually is accompanied by great pain and swelling. Hot water applications are the best to relieve the pain and reduce the swelling. The injured joint should be kept absolutely at rest. A good way to secure this is to strap the joint for some distance above and below with adhesive plaster, layer upon layer. If there is a weak spot in the dressing it can be strengthened by another layer or so. Care should be taken to see that the plaster is not so tight as to interfere with the circulation. It is easy to determine this by noting whether the parts below the dressing remain warm. If they do not it is a sure sign that the dressing has impeded the circulation of blood. If this is the case loosen the bandage sufficiently to allow the blood to flow normally.

Might Have Been Worse.

A plumber once presented to a millionaire a bill of $100 for mending a pipe. But the millionaire handed the plumber a dollar note and said severely: "Receipt that bill of yours in full." "But—but—" said the plumber. "Receipt it in full," the millionaire repeated. "I used to be a plumber, man, myself." The plumber at this gave a great start, receipted the bill and handed the millionaire 59 cents change.—Detroit Free Press.

Newspaper Advertising

Goes direct to the people and the people constitute the buying public. Newspaper advertising not only talks but it emphasizes; it has the undivided attention of the reader and covers a field no salesman can hope to reach. There are many styles in newspaper advertising and the small announcement, which costs only five cents, is just as effective in its way as the larger one, which costs proportionately more. The benefits to be derived can not be measured by the size of the ad, for the very good reason that the small, inexpensive announcement invariably proves effective. Newspaper advertising costs from five cents up to any price the advertiser desires to pay.

Bowser Catches On

But in place of this he had been very arrogant about the house. He had talked about "my" house, "my" grocery,

She was both amused and provoked, and after several days she wrote a letter to her mother. In the letter she said:

"Mr. Bowser has a case of the 'big head.' I think you had better come out and see him. He's been acting very queer lately."

Like 99 women out of 100, when Mrs. Bowser received her letter she reads it and then places it on the mantelpiece or piano until she gets time to read it two or three times more. Mr. Bowser had only to read it once to lay his little plan.

When the train from Okomas arrived in the city at 5 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Bowser's mother-in-law was one of the passengers. As usual, she had a folded umbrella in one hand and her quaint old carpet bag in the other.

She was disputing with the hackman as to the price to be paid when her smiling son-in-law approached with extended hand and a bland smile. He not only wrung her hand like one glad to see another, but he kissed her—yes, sir, Mr. Bowser positively kissed his mother-in-law and that before fifty people!

"Why—why—why?" she stammered. In her great confusion.

"Why, mother, dear, I'm awfully glad to see you," he said.

"But I—I didn't expect you to meet me. Did Sarah tell you to come?"

"Oh, I just happened to be here on business. You are going to the house, of course?"

"Why—er—yes."

"Then come along, and never mind the hack. We'll whirl over in an auto. Nothing is too rich for my dear mother."

The old lady was so paralyzed that she dropped both satchel and umbrella, and when he had picked them up she slowly followed him out of the depot and wondered if she had arrived at Oshkosh or Yaphank, and whether his name was Bowser or Jones.

On the way over to the house he kept calling her "dear mother" and saying that he had been longing to see her for the last month, and she was so astonished that for once in her life she kept her mouth shut for fully five minutes.

As Mrs. Bowser had planned it, she was to lay down on the lounge a few minutes before Mr. Bowser would reach home for dinner. There would be camphor sprinkled around, and she would have a nice clean towel around her head. The mother would be seated upstairs, ready to play her part at a minute's notice. Mr. Bowser would burst into the hall in his usual impetuous way, and, smelling the camphor, he would strike back into the sitting room and demand of the half dead woman lying with closed eyes:

"Woman, what in the old Harry does this mean! Is it another of your infernal sick headaches? Can't I leave this house for a day and return without finding you kerfopped with some ailment or other?"

"Oh, Samuel!" she murmured.

"Don't 'oh, Samuel me!' he shouted, 'but tell me what's the matter. Have you got a chicken bone in your throat or has a rattlesnake bitten you?"

And at this critical moment the mother-in-law would appear in the door, and the way she would go for Samuel Bowser and the way he would be crushed would long be remembered. But that little plot never developed.

Mrs. Bowser was on the front steps, looking up the street for the arrival of the expected mother, who probably would come on the street car, when an auto whirled around the corner and drove up to the gate and stopped with a grand flourish. In that auto were seated Mr. Bowser and her mother.

They were not ghosts, but living human beings. Mr. Bowser raised his hat and gave a half cheer, and the old lady somehow managed to call out:

"Howdy, Sarah!"

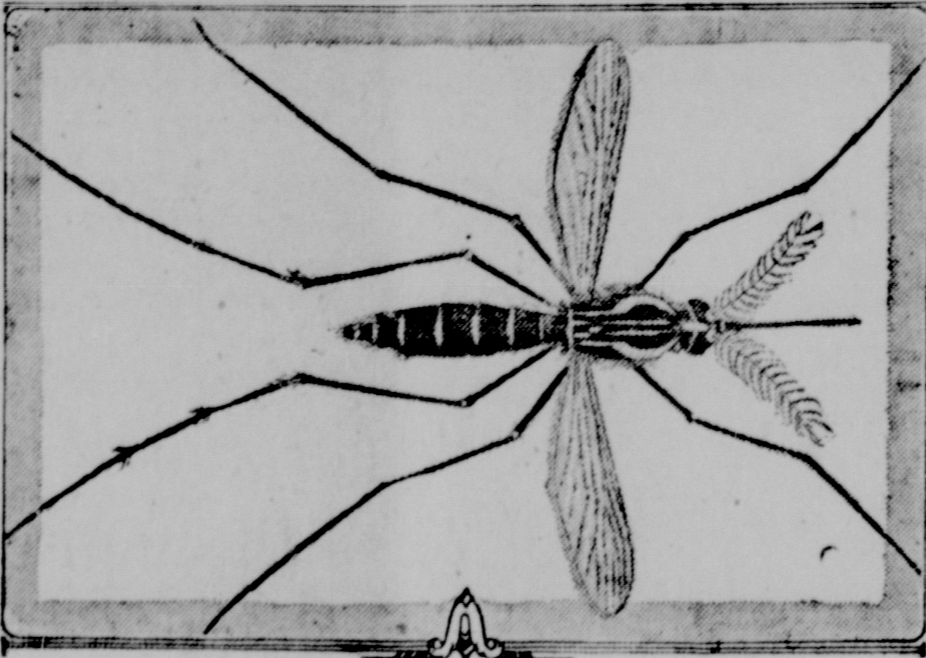

With tenderest hand and smiling like a June morning Mr. Bowser assisted his visitor to alight and conducted her up the steps and said to the puzzled and astonished wife:

When the mother and daughter were alone upstairs the mother asked:

"Sarah, what in tarnation does this mean?"

"I—I don't know, mother."

"Well, he acts more like a bridegroom than a son-in-law. He never liked me, and I never liked him, and yet he is as juicy and tender toward me as a rare beefsteak. He said he was at the depot on business, but I don't believe it. I believe he must have got hold of my letter and is playing a joke on us. It doesn't look as if I would have a chance to do any crushing this trip."

The "crushing" was all in Mr. Bowser's hands, and Mrs. Bowser was made the victim. Under the excuse that the house might be broken into if left to guard itself he invited the mother-in-law to go to the movies with him while Mrs. Bowser remained at home. "Dear mother" accepted the invitation, and her daughter shed a few tears during the lonely hours she had to pass.

The old lady had never been to a zoo. Mr. Bowser took her to one while Mrs. Bowser had to remain at home to see about the dinner.

One evening at the dinner table Mr. Bowser announced that he had received an invitation to deliver an address before the Gulliver club.

"And you will go?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Not by a long shot. I am going to teach mother how to play euchre this evening."

And he did. The next day the mother said to the daughter:

"Sarah, this is intolerable. We must change it."

"But how can we?" was asked.

"There is but one way—let him be Bowser again. I liked his old ways better than his new ones."

"So did I."

And the "dear mother" took an early opportunity to say:

"Samuel, my son, you are acting too damned good. Please make a change."

And a few hours later as Mr. Bowser came upon Mrs. Bowser using the carpet sweeper he saw tears in her eyes as she looked up at him.

"Oh, Samuel, you are too good—too good! Please go back to last week and be bad again. You have punished me enough!"

"Hanged if I don't be a bad man with a big B and carry two guns and a knife!" he laughed.

And next time you hear Mr. Bowser you will learn that he has resumed business at the old stand.

"But—but—" said the plumber.

"Receipt it in full," the millionaire repeated. "I used to be a plumber, man, myself."

The plumber at this gave a great start, receipted the bill and handed the millionaire 59 cents change.—Detroit Free Press.

Look Before You Leap.

The cake she made looked fine enough To justify her pride, But when we came to eat the stuff We pretty nearly died!

She said she could not comprehend What trouble there could be, She'd followed closely to the end The cookbook recipe.

It certainly seemed strange the cake Should turn out such a mess Unless she made some sad mistake Despite her carefulness.

The book proved such the truth to be Beyond the slightest doubt, For from the simple recipe Six pages were torn out!

If the Mexican people would start a revolution against revolution and put it through in the usual Mexican fashion they might effectually stamp out their country's greatest curse.

We are threatened with a deluge of poetry after the war. Well, we'll be so busy and happy enjoying peace that even a record calamity of that sort won't worry us.

With fully one-half of our land defense force represented in the national guard it is about time that the word "militia" ceased to be a term of covert ridicule.

THE FAMILY VACUUM.

She Knew Its Exact Location, and He Confirmed Her Report.

The good man had just been informed by the only person who could possibly possess the information that he hadn't an ounce of sense, that he had never had an ounce of sense and that there was not the remotest chance that he ever would have an ounce of sense.

Having been assured on these points, the good man turned to his paper, only to be interrupted by his young son and heir:

"Father," asked the boy, "what is a vacuum, and where can I find one?"

"My boy," replied the good man, "if we are to assume that your mother is qualified to speak on the subject I possess the only real vacuum in the neighborhood, and, for your further information, it is situated just between my collar and the glossy open space where I used to grow hair."

"You mean your dome?"

"Yes, my son, that is the family vacuum."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

My Dog.

I tried to write a poem To my dog the other day, To tell him that I loved him In the very nicest way.

Mamma said it was a poem— That I had done quite well, But papa's name is nicer, For he called it "Doggerel."

Newspaper Advertising

Goes direct to the people and the people constitute the buying public. Newspaper advertising not only talks but it emphasizes; it has the undivided attention of the reader and covers a field no salesman can hope to reach. There are many styles in newspaper advertising and the small announcement, which costs only five cents, is just as effective in its way as the larger one, which costs proportionately more. The benefits to be derived can not be measured by the size of the ad, for the very good reason that the small, inexpensive announcement invariably proves effective. Newspaper advertising costs from five cents up to any price the advertiser desires to pay.
